

THE LEGISLATURE.

The Legislative function of government, as defined and limited by the Constitution of the State, is the growth of our own soil, the same as the Judicial function. The Constitution of the colony recognized three branches to the Legislature, only one of which owed its origin to the will of the people, while the other two existed by grace of the sovereign. The conflicts of the Colony were the same as the contemporaneous conflicts of the mother country; they were struggles between Royal power and Parliamentary authority. The first Constitution of the State was based on the principle of parliamentary supremacy. Gradually, however, the People exercised their sovereignty more and more directly, until now the powers of the Legislature are restricted by the Constitution. The history of the aggressions upon royal power has been traced in detail. The parliamentary principle was not fully applied, as in England; for the reason that the Chief Executive and the upper branch of the Legislature, being chosen by the people, could be safely intrusted with their legitimate rights. The Governor, however, was at first deprived of the power over the enactment of laws which he held under the Colony; but this power was subsequently restored to him in a modified form. Neither Executive nor Legislative supremacy is now conceded; for the organic law as directly established by the people, through approval of the constitutional recommendations of their representatives, restrains both.

The Legislative branch of the State Government has always consisted of a Senate and Assembly. Bills may originate in either House, but must be passed by both in order to become laws. In case bills are returned with objections, two-thirds of all the members present (if a quorum) passed the bill notwithstanding the objections, until the adoption of the amendments to the Constitution in 1874. Two-thirds of all elected are now necessary to override a veto. Each house makes its own rules and judges the qualifications of its own members. Their sessions are open and journals published.

Soon after the organization of the Government, the Assembly asserted the right (which had belonged to the Colonial Assembly) of originating all bills containing appropriations of the public moneys. The Senate, on the 26th of October, 1778, asserted its co-ordinate right in that respect. This was met by the Assembly, on the 4th of November, passing a formal resolution asserting its sole right to the privilege. The discussion was not continued. Usage has established the right of the Assembly to originate money bills; the Senate freely exercising its right to amend, modify or reject, as it may deem proper, which the Council could not do.

The two houses, jointly, from 1777 to 1789, appointed Delegates to Congress; since 1787, Regents of the University; since 1789, Senators in Congress; from 1816 to 1844, Canal Commissioners, and under the Constitution of 1821, the Secretary of State, Comptroller, Treasurer, Attorney-General, Surveyor-General, and Commissary-General; since 1854, the Superintendent of Public Instruction. By an act passed May 6, 1844, it was provided that Canal Commissioners¹ should be elected by the people. This Constitution provided for a decennial census from which the apportionment of Senators and Assemblymen should be from time to time equalized.

Under the existing Constitution, any elector of the State, receiving a plurality of all the votes cast in any legislative district of the State, at a regular election for members of the Legislature, may become a member of the branch to which he is thus elected. But "no person shall be eligible to the Legislature who at the time of his election is, or within one hundred days previous thereto, has been a member of Congress, a civil or military officer under the United States, or an officer under any city government; and if any person shall after his election as a member of the Legislature be elected to Congress, or appointed to any office, civil or military, under the government of the United States, or under any city government, his acceptance thereof shall vacate his seat." Nor can any member of the Legislature receive any "civil appointment within the State or the Senate of the United States, from the Governor, the Governor and Senate, or from the Legislature or from any city government during the time for which he shall have been elected; and all such appointments and all votes given for any such member for any such office or appointment shall be void."

Each member of the Legislature receives for his services an annual salary of $1,500, and one dollar for every ten miles of travel, in going to and returning from the place of meeting, once in each session, on the most usual route. Senators, when the Senate alone is convened in extraordinary session, or when serving as members of the Court for the Trial of Impeachments, receive an additional allowance of ten dollars a day; and the same compensation is paid the managers on the part of the Assembly, not exceeding nine in number.

The Lieutenant-Governor is President of the Senate, and it is customary for that body likewise to elect a President pro tem. A Speaker is elected by the Assembly, at the commencement of each annual session, on the first Tuesday in January in each year. It likewise elects a Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, Doorkeeper, etc., and has several minor officers.

The Legislature is prohibited from passing a private or local bill in any of the following cases: Changing the names of persons. Laying out, opening, altering, working or discontinuing roads, highways or alleys, or for draining swamps or other low lands. Locating or changing county seats. Providing for changes of venue in civil or criminal cases. Incorporating villages. Providing for election of members of boards of supervisors. Selecting, drawing, summoning or impaneling grand or petit jurors. Regulating the rate of interest on money. The opening and conducting of elections or designating places of voting. Creating, increasing or decreasing fees, percentage or allowances of public officers, during the term for which said officers are elected or appointed. Granting to any corporation, association or individual, the right to lay down railroad tracks. Granting to any private corporation, association or individual any exclusive privilege, immunity or franchise whatever. Providing for building bridges and chartering companies for such purposes, except on the Hudson river below Waterford, and on the East river or over the waters forming a part of the boundaries of the State. In these cases the Legislature is required to pass general laws, and also in all cases where in its judgment general laws can be rendered applicable. But no law shall authorize the construction or operation of a street railroad except upon the condition that the consent of the owners of one-half in value of the property bounded on, and the consent also of the local authorities having the control of that portion of a street or highway upon which it is proposed to construct or operate such railroad be first obtained; or in case the consent of such property owners cannot be obtained, the general term of the Supreme Court, in the district in which it is proposed to be constructed, may, upon application, appoint three commissioners who shall determine, after a hearing of all parties interested, whether such railroad ought to be constructed or operated, and their determination, confirmed by the court, may be taken in lieu of the consent of the property owners. But these provisions do not apply to bills reported by the Commission to revise the statutes. The Legislature is prohibited from granting extra compensation to any public officer, servant, agent or contractor and so also are the Common Councils of cities and the Boards of Supervisors of counties. And the Legislature can neither audit nor allow any private claim or account against the State, but may appropriate moneys to pay such claims as shall have been audited and allowed according to law. Every law which imposes, continues or revives a tax shall distinctly state the tax and the object to which it is to be applied, and it shall not be sufficient to refer to any other law to fix such tax or object. Charters of savings banks must be regulated by general law. Neither the credit nor the money of the State shall be given or loaned to or in aid of any association, corporation or private undertaking. This, however, does not prevent the Legislature from making such provisions for the education and support of the blind, the deaf and dumb, and juvenile delinquents, as to it may seem proper. Nor does it apply to any fund or property held by the State for educational purposes.¹ "No bill shall become a law after the final adjournment of the Legislature, unless approved by the Governor within thirty days after such adjournment."²

Each branch of the Legislature judges of the qualifications of its own members, and makes its own rules for their government. Their sessions are open, except when the public welfare requires secrecy, and their journals are published.

The Clerks of the Senate and of the Assembly were required under an act passed April 14, 1859, to provide a Seal for each house, for authenticating copies of legislative papers. They both represent the crest of the State arms, with the legends, STATE OF NEW YORK, CLERK OF THE SENATE, and STATE OF NEW YORK, CLERK OF THE ASSEMBLY, respectively, around the margin. The Assembly Seal had rays surrounding the design, while that of the Senate had none. These seals were superseded January 1, 1883, by the Arms of the State as described in chapter 190, Laws of 1882, surrounded by the inscriptions, "State of New York — Clerk of the Senate," and "State of New York — Clerk of Assembly," respectively.

THE COUNCILS.

The Council of the Director-General of the Province of New Netherland acted as an Executive Council and a Supreme Court, with admiralty and appellate jurisdiction. Appeals lay to them from decisions of local or inferior courts. The members could not be sued before, and were not amenable to, such inferior courts. Their independence of the Governor was, however, very trifling; they may be said, indeed, to have held their office purely at his pleasure, as in one instance he caused a file of soldiers to eject summarily the Vice-Director, or Deputy-Governor, from the council chamber, for opposition to his will, and, on a different occasion, it is alleged, that he caned another member of the Board. In extraordinary circumstances, it was the custom to adjoin some of the colonists or public servants, to the Board, and the captains of the West India Company's ships, when on shore, had a voice in the Council. The Schout-fiscal had a seat, but no vote in the Board, and when he acted as prosecuting officer, he retired from the Bench.

The Council of the Governor of the Colony of New York does not seem to have been, at first, limited to any determinate number. On the appointment of Major Andros to the government, in 1674, he was authorized to choose such a number as he should find convenient, and it consisted, in his time, of ten members. In 1683, Governor Dongan was also empowered to name his Council, which was also limited to ten, and in 1686 reduced to seven members. Afterward, in 1691, the number was increased to twelve, and so remained fixed whilst the English possessed the country, though by death and other casualties it sometimes fell short of that number. All the members very rarely attended the sittings of the Council, many residing at a distance. They were named in the Governor's instructions, but vacancies were filled, from time to time, either by the Governor, or by royal mandamus. Any member residing in the Province, absenting himself therefrom and continuing absent from the Province above twelve months together, without leave, or remaining absent two years successively without leave, forfeited his commission, and such as did not attend the sittings of the Council when summoned were liable to suspension. The quorum was fixed, in 1691, at five; afterward reduced to three; but in 1697 it was re-established at five, and so continued, although in some exceptional cases three formed a quorum in the Legislative Council, and two members could adjourn the session.

In 1691 the constitution of the Council was organized as it continued throughout the colonial period. Their privileges and powers were laid down in the royal instructions to the Governor. Their functions were threefold: 1. In an Executive capacity, they acted as a Privy Council to the head of the Government in civil matters, who was generally present when the Executive Council was in session. They were consulted in the grant of all patents, which could not pass the seal without their advice; they had also a voice in the appointment to most of the civil offices in the colony. 2. They formed, with the Governor, a Court for the Correction of Errors and of Appeals, and sat, ordinarily, in the fort at New York. 3. They constituted the second branch of the Legislature, co-ordinate with the Senate of the present day. Previous to 1736, the Governor presided also in the Council when it acted in a Legislative capacity, and, in case of a tie, gave the casting vote as presiding officer. This was pronounced unconstitutional in Governor Cosby's time, and thenceforward the Legislative Council met without the Governor, and held its sessions in the city hall. The members ranked according to the date of their commissions. At first the Chief Justice presided, but his duties at the Supreme Court requiring his attendance, it was resolved that the senior councillor present should be President. In committee, the chairman had no voice. When acting as Legislative Councillors, their proceedings were very formal, and in many respects they imitated the House of Lords. Each member had the privilege of entering his dissent, and the reason at large on the minutes, but could not vote by proxy. The messages from the Council to the Assembly were conveyed by one of their own members, at whose entrance the House rose and received the message standing. Their sessions were with closed doors. The minutes of the Legislative Council were printed for the first time in 1861, by order of the State Senate.

A Councillor's title was "The Honorable." His name was inserted in all the commissions of the Peace as of the Quorum, whereby he was empowered to act as Justice of the Peace in any county within the Province. He held his office during pleasure, and served without salary. His position, nevertheless, was such, that he was enabled to secure for himself, his family and friends, large grants of land, which indemnified him for whatever time and labor he otherwise lost. The Surveyors-General of the Customs sat and voted as "extraordinary Councillors" within their District, during the time of their residence within such district.

COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

This body was appointed on the 3d May, 1777, after the formation of the State Constitution, as a temporary form of government, until a Governor should be elected and the Legislature meet. It consisted of fifteen members, and sat from the 14th May to the 10th of September, 1777.

On the adjournment of the Legislature in October, a second Council of Safety was appointed, which held its sessions first at Kingston; moved thence to Hurley and finally removed to Poughkeepsie. This Council consisted of thirteen persons; but every member of the Senate and Assembly, and the Delegates of the State in Congress, were ex officio members, and entitled to a vote. It continued in session from the 8th of October, 1777, to the 7th of January, 1778, and was superseded by the Legislative Convention which met in the interval between that date and the assembling of the Legislature.

COUNCIL OF REVISION.

The original section of the Constitution creating the Council of Revision (Sec. 3), was introduced into the Convention on the 1st of April, 1777, by Robert R. Livingston (afterward Chancellor of the State), and the original draft is in his handwriting. After stating that "laws inconsistent with the spirit of this Constitution, or with the public good, may be hastily and unadvisedly passed," it ordained "that the Governor, for the time being, the Chancellor and the Judges of the Supreme Court, or any two of them, together with the Governor, shall be, and hereby are, constituted a Council to revise all bills about to be passed into Laws by the Legislature. And for that purpose shall assemble themselves, from time to time, when the Legislature shall be convened. And that all bills which have passed the Senate and Assembly shall, before they become laws, be presented to the said Council for their revisal and consideration; and if upon such revision and consideration, it should appear improper to the said Council, or a majority of them, that the said bill should become a law of this State, that they return the same, together with their objections thereto in writing, to the Senate or House of Assembly, in whichsoever the same shall have originated, who shall enter the objections sent down by the Council, at large, in their minutes, and proceed to reconsider the said bill." Upon such reconsideration being had, the bill shall become a law "if approved by two-thirds of the members present." In order to prevent any unnecessary delays, it further ordained, "that if any bill shall not be returned by the Council within ten days after it shall have been presented, the same shall be a law, unless the Legislature shall, by their adjournment, render a return of the said bill within ten days impracticable; in which case, the bill shall be returned on the first day of the meeting of the Legislature, after the expiration of the said ten days."

The Council had a Clerk, and sat with closed doors. Its members were not to be allowed any compensation, under any pretense whatever. During its existence it returned one hundred and sixty-nine bills to the Legislature, with its objections, fifty-one of which became laws notwithstanding. The Council was abolished by the Constitution of 1821. Its minutes comprise five volumes, and are deposited in the office of the Secretary of State. They have never been printed; but a history of the Council, its Members and its Vetoes, edited by ALFRED B. STREET, formerly State Librarian, has been published.

COUNCIL OF APPOINTMENT.

The Executive Council of the Colonial period was succeeded under the first State Constitution, by a Council of Appointment, which was composed of one Senator from each district, openly nominated and appointed each year by the Assembly, no Senator being eligible two years successively. At first, difficulties occurred, in a few instances, in settling upon the term of office, but it was finally determined that members held their office for a full year from the date of their appointment, without regard to their senatorial term. In 1781, Gov. Clinton protested against the admission of Parks, appointed in place of Paine expelled, on the ground that under the Constitution nominations could only be made "once in a year." This position was overruled, and Parks admitted to the seat. The Governor was the presiding officer of the Council, and had a casting vote. Until 1801, he alone exercised the power of originating nominations, but the Constitutional Convention, which assembled that year, gave a concurrent power of nomination to the several members of the Council.

1 Vacated by expulsion from Senate March 15, 1781, and Arthur Parks appointed March 23, 1781.

SENATE.

The Lieutenant-Governor is, ex officio, presiding officer of the Senate. He cannot participate in debates, nor vote, except in cases of a tie. In his absence the Senate elects one of its own members to act as President, pro tem., and while so acting he has the right to vote. Under the first Constitution the Senate consisted of twenty-four members, apportioned among four great districts. After the first election they were divided by lot into four classes, so that the terms of six should expire each year. An additional Senator was to be added to each district whenever, by a septennial census, it was shown that the number of electors in the district had increased one twenty-fourth. This increase was to be allowed until the number reached 100. The census of 1795 made the number forty-three. In 1801, the rule being found unequal in its operation, the Constitution was amended so as to fix the number permanently at thirty-two, which has ever since been retained.

The principal change made by the Constitution of 1821, in the legislative branch of the government, was the election of State officers by joint ballot, and the conferring of the appointing power upon the Governor and Senate. The following officers were thus appointed, besides several local and minor officers:¹ Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, Judges of County Courts, Surrogates, Masters and Examiners in Chancery, Notaries Public, Supreme Court Commissioners, Loan Commissioners, Inspectors and Measurers for commercial purposes, Recorders and Marshals of cities, Commissioners of Deeds in this State, Superintendent of Salt Springs, Harbor Masters, Port Wardens and Pilots, Directors in certain Banks, Inspectors and Clerks of Prisons, Indian agents, etc., Inspectors of turnpikes, Canal Appraisers, Major-Generals, Brigade Inspectors and Chiefs of the Staff departments, except Adjutant-General (appointed by the Governor) and Commissary-General. At the time of the adoption of the new Constitution, 2,238 officers were thus appointed.

The power of appointment by the Governor and Senate is limited to Superintendent of Public Works, Superintendent of Prisons, Superintendents of the Bank and Insurance Departments, Railroad Commissioners, Capitol Commissioner, Commissioners of Claims, Civil Service Commissioners, Commissioner in Lunacy, Commissioner of Statistics of Labor, Members of Board of State Charities, State Assessors, Trustees of Asylums for Idiots and Insane, Port Wardens and Harbor Masters of New York, Health Officer and Captain of the Port of New York, Commissioners of Emigration, and other civil officers, Majors-General and Commissary-General.

When deliberating upon appointments to office, the Senate is said to be in executive session, and they usually on such occasions sit with closed doors; their votes and debates are not preserved, and their proceedings are recorded separately in volumes kept by their clerk. Executive sessions of the Senate have been repeatedly convened at times when the Legislature was not in session, and when important offices were to be filled.

The State was divided into eight great Senatorial districts, each of which was entitled to four Senators, one being elected every year. Term of office, four years. Under the present Constitution, the Senate consists of thirty-two members, who are elected each odd year, one in each Senatorial district. The Senate districts must consist of contiguous territory, and no county can be divided unless entitled to two or more Senators. A census is required to be taken every ten years (1875, 1885, etc.), and an apportionment must be made by the Legislature at its first session after the return of every enumeration.

THE ASSEMBLY.

The right to representation in General Assembly was finally secured, by the people residing in the province of New York, after the Revolution in England which placed William and Mary on the throne.¹ On the 19th of March, 1691, Governor Sloughter arrived, with instructions to re-establish the Assembly² and to reinstate the people in their rights. It met on the 9th of April, 1691, and consisted of seventeen members, which number was increased, subsequently, to twenty-seven. The compilers of the laws were directed to commence with the General Assembly of 1691. After an existence of about ninety-two years, the Colonial Assembly adjourned April 3, 1775, and never again convened.

Previous to 1716, new Assemblies were elected about every two years, though sometimes but a few months would intervene between the elections. The Assembly elected in 1716 continued over ten years—from June 5, 1716, to August 10, 1726. Four Assemblies succeeded during the next ten years, the last expiring May 3, 1737. A new Assembly convened June 15, 1737, which passed an act providing for triennial elections. The bill passed the Council and received the sanction of Lieutenant-Governor Clarke, but was repealed by the King, November 30, 1738, on the recommendation of the Lords of Trade, notwithstanding the Lieutenant-Governor sent a written appeal in favor of it. The next Assembly convened March, 1739, and continued until September, 1743, when it was dissolved. On the 8th of November following, another House met and, in December, passed an act limiting each Assembly to seven years, if not previously dissolved.

In 1774, the House was composed of thirty-one members. They were elected on writs issued by order of the Governor, who had the power, by and with the advice of the Council, to convene, prorogue or dissolve the Assembly at pleasure. In case of vacancy during the session of the Legislature, the writ was issued on a warrant signed by the Speaker. None were eligible for representatives except freeholders, resident in the district from which they were elected.

Members were paid by their constituents, those of New York, Westchester, Queens, Kings, Ulster, Richmond, Dutchess, Orange, and the Manor of Cortland, receiving six shillings (75c.) a day; of Albany, Schenectady, Borough of Westchester, Manors of Livingston and Rensselaerswyck, ten shillings ($1.25), and those of Suffolk, nine shillings ($1.12½) a day, for the time of their attendance, which was duly certified by the Speaker, and the same per diem, for the time, which was fixed by law, for their journey to and from New York.

On the day appointed for the meeting of a new Legislature, the members elect convened at the Assembly Chamber, in the city of New York, and if they were above thirteen in number, sent the Clerk of the House to inform the Governor of their attendance. Commissioners, generally the Judges of the Supreme Court, were sent to the Assembly Chamber to qualify them, after which their presence was required before his Excellency, who requested them to return to their chamber and elect a Speaker. For that purpose they again retired, and having made a choice, conducted the person elected to the Chair, which was placed at the upper end of the long table. He subsequently presented himself, accompanied by the members, to the Governor, for his approval, which was of course. The Speaker, thereupon; addressed the Governor, and, in behalf of the House, prayed "that their words and actions may have a favorable construction; that the members may have free access to him, and they and their servants be privileged with freedom from arrests." The Governor, having granted this request, opened the session by reading his speech to both Houses, a copy whereof was delivered to the Speaker of the Assembly.

Messages to the Council were conveyed by one of the members of the House, who was met at the bar of the Council by the Speaker of that body, into whose hands the message was delivered. All money bills originated in the Assembly, which, according to the practice of the House of Commons, allowed no amendment to be made thereto by the Council.

Both Houses were present in the Council Chamber when the Governor passed the bills sent to him, on which occasion the custom was for his Excellency to ask the advice of his Council with respect to every bill. If approved, he signed them after these words: "I assent to this bill, enacting the same, and order it to be enrolled." The acts were thereupon published in the open street, near the city hall, New York, in the presence of the Governor and both branches of the Legislature.

All laws passed were subject, subsequently, to an absolute veto of the King. If disallowed, an order in Council to that effect was transmitted to the Governor and recorded in the minutes of the Council, and notice of the fact was given by proclamation.

The General Assembly was succeeded by the Provincial Congress. The First Provincial Congress assembled on the 22d of May, 1775. Some of the members were elected for one year, others for six months. A majority of the counties represented constituted a quorum for the dispatch of business. The vote was taken by counties, each of which generally designated in its returns the number of its delegation that might cast the vote to which it was entitled. At first, New York had four, Albany three, and each of the remaining counties two votes, except Gloucester (now in Vermont), which had one vote; but the ratio was changed in 1776, and in the Third Provincial Congress and the State Convention, New York was allowed eight; Albany six; Dutchess five; Ulster, Westchester, Queens and Suffolk each, four; Orange three; Kings, Richmond, Tryon, Charlotte and Cumberland, each two votes, and Gloucester one vote. But any member was at liberty to have his name and dissent from the vote of his county entered on the minutes. The proceedings were with closed doors, and none but members, all of whom were pledged to secrecy, were permitted to take copies of the minutes. Provision was made with a view to the ultimate publication, at the close of the session, of the proceedings of the Congress, except such part as the unanimous voice of the counties should declare to be of a secret or unimportant nature; leaving to the body power to publish from time to time such extracts as it may deem fit. These rules governed succeeding Congresses, but the Journal was not printed until 1842.

The First Provincial Congress held three sessions, viz.: from the 22d May to the 8th July, when it adjourned until the 26th of the same month, having appointed a Committee of Safety to sit during the recess. It re-assembled on the 26th of July, and sat until the 2d of September, when it adjourned until the 2d of October, the Committee of Safety sitting in the interval. It assembled for the third time, on the 4th of the latter month, and finally dissolved on the 4th of November, having previously provided for an election of a new Provincial Congress.

The Second Provincial Congress was to be elected on the 7th, and to have met on the 14th of November, but a sufficient number of deputies did not attend until the 6th of December, 1775. Like its predecessor, it sat in the city of New York. It held three meetings, or sessions, viz.: from the 6th to the 22d December, 1775; from the 12th February to 16th March, and from the 8th to the 13th May, 1776. Queens county was not represented in this Congress. The Committee of Safety superintended public affairs during the adjournment.

The Third Provincial Congress was elected in April, 1776, to meet at New York on the 14th of May, but a sufficient number of members not attending, it adjourned from day to day until the 18th, when, a quorum being present, it proceeded to business, and continued in session until the 30th of June; on which day it adjourned, an attack on the city being anticipated.

The Fourth Provincial Congress assembled at the court-house in the town of Whiteplains, in the county of Westchester, on the 9th of July, 1776; and the Declaration of Independence having been read and unanimously agreed to, the title of the body was changed, on the 10th of July, from that of the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New York, to that of The Convention of the Representatives of the State of New York. This body continued to sit at Whiteplains until the 27th of July, when it adjourned to meet at Harlem on the 29th; where it continued until the 29th August, when it adjourned to Fishkill, leaving the public business, meanwhile, in the hands of the Committee of Safety. The Convention met in the latter place on the 5th of September, in the Episcopal Church, but that building "being very foul with the dung of doves and fowls, without any benches, seats, or other conveniences whatever," it adjourned to the Dutch Church. On the 7th it took a recess until the 14th of the same month, and thence continued in session until the 5th of October, when it adjourned over to the 15th, and again resigned the care of public affairs to the Committee of Public Safety. It held brief sessions on the 5th and 6th of December, and on the 11th of February, 1777, resolved to adjourn to Kingston. It met at the latter place on the 6th of March, and having formed a State Constitution and provided a temporary form of government by electing a Council of Safety, it finally dissolved on the 13th of May. The approach of the enemy on Kingston obliging the Legislature, then in session at that place, to disperse, the members of the Senate and Assembly met as a Convention there on the 7th of October, 1777, and appointed another Council of Safety, whereupon they adjourned. This Legislative Convention assembled afterward at Poughkeepsie, January 7, 1778, and having adopted sundry measures, was dissolved by the meeting of the Legislature, on the 15th of the same month.

The Assembly, under the State Constitution, has always been chosen annually. It consisted at first of seventy members, with the power to increase one with every seventieth increase of the number of electors until it contained three hundred members. When the Constitution was amended in 1801, the number had reached 108, when it was reduced to 100, with a provision that it should be increased after each census, at the rate of two annually, until the number reached 150. This increase was twelve in 1808, and fourteen in 1815. The Constitution of 1821 fixed the number permanently at 128. Members were elected on a general ticket. Under the Constitution of 1846, members of Assembly are elected by single districts.

No change can be made in the representation of counties between the period fixed by the Constitution for the apportionment based upon the Census taken in years ending in 5. Counties erected from parts of other counties, or embracing parts of different election districts, between these periods, cannot have a separate representation until the next apportionment. In such cases the elections are held and the votes canvassed in the original counties, as if no division had been made until the arrival of the period for a new apportionment. The Legislature apportions to each county its relative number of members, and the Boards of Supervisors divide the towns and wards in their respective counties into Assembly Districts, except in the city and county of New York, where the apportionment is made by the Board of Aldermen. The Boards of Supervisors of the several counties were required to meet on the first Tuesday of January succeeding the adoption of the Constitution, and divide the counties into districts, of the number apportioned to them, of convenient and contiguous territory, and as nearly equal population as possible. After each State Census, the Legislature is required to re-apportion the members and to direct the time when the supervisors shall meet for the purpose for re-districting. Pursuant to this provision the boards met in June, 1857, 1866 and 1879. Fulton and Hamilton counties together elect one member, and every other county one or more. Acts re-apportioning the State reached the order of third reading of bills each session since the census of 1875 was taken, but failed of final passage, in consequence of differences of opinion with regard to the proper ratio of representation. An act was finally passed April 23, 1879 (Laws 1879, ch. 208).

1 Announced their withdrawal, in a petition presented to the Governor and Council June 9. This petition was delivered to the Assembly by the Governor, who held it to be "not cognizable by him," and advised its signers to return, which they formally did June 11, saying: "but cannot sit and act as members at present—but desire further time for consideration."

2 Declared "not qualified according to law," May 28.

3 Admitted June 6.

5 Admitted June 7.

7 In place of Kerfbyl, deceased.

8 The Earl of Bellmont, Governor, being dead, and the Lieutenant-Governor absent, the Council and General Assembly concurred in the opinion that the administration of the Government devolved on the Council. This was disputed by Colonel William Smith, president of the Council, who claimed that the government vested in him. These gentlemen thereupon signed a paper in opposition to the position of the Council and Assembly, whereupon the latter adopted a resolution declaring that the subscribers had "offered the greatest scandal to the Whole House of Representatives" and were "liable to the severest rebukes of this House for their disloyalty and insolence, and that Major Matthew Howell, being the writer and deliverer in of the said paper, be forthwith expelled this House."

9 Abraham Gouverneur received 10 votes; William Nicoll, 9; not voting, 2.

10 Declared disqualified for non-residence, and "ordered to withdraw," August 19.

11 Wessels dismissed, and Schermerhorn, the next highest candidate, admitted August 20.

12 Withdrew with Wessels and Nicoll August 20, "notwithstanding the speaker often commanded them, in the name of the House, to stay and attend the service of this House." [Assembly Journal.] Expelled for non-attendance August 26, and new elections ordered.

13 Admitted September 18, in place of Schuyler, Abeel and Van Rensselaer, respectively.

14 Admitted September 12, in place of Jackson, Whitehead and Drake, respectively. Expelled September 22, for having presented a paper "writ in barbarous English," representing that the organization of the House is illegal, and Gouverneur an alien; and for refusing to recognize a summons to appear and answer with regard thereto. The succeeding assembly (November 11, 1702), adjudged Gouverneur an alien, and adopted a resolution that acts passed under the speakership of an alien are "not binding upon the citizen."

15 Died in the interval between the two sittings, and new election ordered.

16 Dismissed for non-residence August 22.

17 Purdy withdrew with the other seceders, August 20. Fowler contested his seat and was admitted August 26. The House then consisted of 12, including Schermerhorn and Fowler, one more than a quorum.

18 Appointed October 29, 1702.

19 Admitted October 26, 1704, in place of Daniel Whitehead, deceased.

CIVIL DIVISIONS.

The State of New York, for the purpose of more conveniently administering the affairs of local government, is divided by law into counties, which are further subdivided into towns. Municipal governments, likewise, are provided for cities and villages, securing to them separate officers and tribunals for the management of their peculiar corporate affairs, and other privileges, varying with their respective charters.

The earliest conflicts between the People and the Director-General, under the Dutch government, had for their object the securing of corporate rights.¹ A measure of success was attained. The English adopted the system of counties, towns, cities and villages. Under the State government the Legislature has exercised supreme control, and possesses the power to grant or withhold municipal privileges still, except as limited by the Constitution. The policy of local control of local affairs has become the accepted policy of the State, and is in a degree recognized in the Constitution, by the amendments adopted in 1874.

The most important general provision of the Constitution relating to the civil divisions of the State is the amendment adopted in 1874, which declares that "no county, city, town or village shall hereafter give any money or property, or loan its money or credit, to or in aid of any individual, association or corporation, or become, directly or indirectly, the owner of stock in or bonds of any association or corporation, nor shall any such county, city, town or village be allowed to incur any indebtedness, except for county, city, town or village purposes. This section shall not prevent such county, city, town or village from making such provision for the aid or support of its poor, as may be authorized by law."

COUNTIES.

Under the Dutch the only divisions were the city and towns. In 1665, a district or Sheriffalty called Yorkshire, was erected. It comprised Long island, Staten island and part of the present county of Westchester. For judicial purposes it was divided into three Ridings. The East Riding comprised the present county of Suffolk; the West Riding, Staten island, Kings county, Newtown and part of Westchester; the North Riding, all the present county of Queens, except Newtown.

Counties were erected, for the first time, by the act of 1683, and were twelve in number, as follows: Albany, Cornwall, Dukes, Dutchess, Kings, New York, Orange, Queens, Richmond, Suffolk, Ulster and Westchester. The county of Cornwall consisted of what was known as the district of Pemaquid (now in Maine), and Dukes county consisted of the several islands on the coast of Massachusetts. These counties were included in the patent to the Duke of York. They were detached on the reorganization of government in 1691.

Cumberland county, in 1766, Gloucester in 1770, and Charlotte in 1772, were formed out of Albany county. The two first, and part of the last, are now in the State of Vermont.

Tryon county was erected in 1772, also out of Albany, and comprised the country west of a north and south line extending from St. Regis to the west bounds of the township of Schenectady, thence running irregularly south-west to the head of the Mohawk branch of the Delaware, and along the same to the south-east bounds of the present county of Broome; thence in a north-westerly direction to Fort Bull, on Wood Creek, near the present village of Rome; all west of the last-mentioned line being Indian Territory. Thus, the Province consisted, at the Revolution, of fourteen counties.

Counties are erected and their boundaries changed at the will of the Legislature. With the exception of Hamilton county, each one is entitled to at least one Member of Assembly. Except in the counties of New York and Kings, and the larger cities, there is elected at least one School Commissioner to each Assembly District. Also, for school purposes, the towns are divided into school districts. The salaries of the School Commissioners are $800 per annum, which may be increased by the Boards of Supervisors. They hold their offices for three years.

For judicial purposes, there is elected in each county a County Judge, and in counties where the business requires it, a Surrogate.

Special Judge and Surrogate, Special Judge and Special Surrogate. Surrogates are elected for six years, under the amended judiciary article. Most of the Special County Judges and Special Surrogates hold offices for three years only. Two Justices of Sessions are chosen annually, but no elector can vote for more than one.

There are likewise elected in each county a District Attorney, Sheriff, Clerk and Treasurer. Most of the counties of the State elect four Coroners. The law requires Superintendents of the Poor in all counties except Albany, Putnam and New York, which have none. In Herkimer, Jefferson and Queens counties the Superintendents are appointed by the Supervisors. In the remainder of the counties they are elected by the people. Kings and Richmond counties each elect five Superintendents; in the first named county, the Superintendents are Commissioners of Charities. Allegany, Broome, Cayuga, Chemung, Clinton, Cortland, Dutchess, Erie, Essex, Franklin, Fulton, Greene, Livingston, Monroe, Montgomery, Niagara, Oneida, Onondaga, Orange, Orleans, Oswego, Otsego, Schenectady, Saratoga, Schoharie, Schuyler, Sullivan, Ulster, Warren and Yates each elect one; all the other counties (except as above noted) choose three.

Sheriffs, Clerks, District Attorneys, Treasurers, Superintendents of the Poor and Coroners hold office for three years. In the counties of Kings, New York and Westchester, Registers of Deeds are elected triennially.

Each county has a Board of Supervisors, consisting of one member from each town and ward in each county, except in New York, in which county the Board of Aldermen constitute the Board of Supervisors; and also, except in the city of Hudson, which is divided into two Supervisors' districts, each district containing two wards. Yonkers elects only one Supervisor, Johnstown is allowed four. The city of Buffalo elects two Supervisors in each ward and the town of Owego, Tioga county, elects two Supervisors. In most of the counties the Supervisors are elected annually (usually in the spring months), but in some of the counties they are elected for two years. The Board has stated meetings for the settlement of its accounts, the apportionment of taxes, and the regulation of internal affairs. It appoints a County Sealer of Weights and Measures, Inspectors of Plank-roads and Turnpikes, and a few other minor officers. The tendency of legislation for several years has been to increase the powers of Boards of Supervisors. Their powers were further increased, under the amendments to the Constitution adopted in 1874 (Art. 3, § 18), by the Legislature of 1875 (ch. 482).

COUNTY JUDGES.¹

In 1683 an act was passed directing that a Court of Sessions be held by three Justices of the Peace in each of the twelve counties of the Province. In the city of New York, the Court was held by the Mayor and four Aldermen; it determined all causes, civil and criminal, by jury, but actions involving £5 could, on application, be removed to the Court of Oyer and Terminer. By the act of 1691, and ordinance of 1699, the functions of this Court were confined to criminal matters; civil cases were transferred to the Court of Common Pleas. Upon the adoption of the Constitution of 1846, a County Court was organized in each county of the State, excepting New York, and provision was made for the election of a Judge in each county to hold the same. The present term of office of County Judges is six years. We give the names of the First Judges of the Court of Common Pleas during its existence, and the County Judges elected or appointed under the Constitution of 1846.

SPECIAL COUNTY JUDGES.

The Constitution authorizes the Legislature, on application of Boards of Supervisors, to provide for the election of an officer, to discharge the duties of County Judge, in cases of inability, or of a vacancy, and to exercise such other powers in special cases as may be provided by law. The Legislature has authorized the election of Special County Judges in several of the counties. The term of office, which usually is three or four years, is fixed in the act creating the office.

SURROGATES.

Surrogates under the first Constitution were appointed for an unlimited period by the Council of Appointment, and an appeal lay from their decisions to the Judge of the Court of Probates of the State. Under the second Constitution they were appointed by the Governor and Senate for terms of four years, and appeals lay from their decisions to the Chancellor. The Constitution of 1846 abolished the office of Surrogate except in counties where the population exceeds forty thousand, and devolved the duties on the County Judge. In counties of forty thousand population the Legislature may authorize the election of Surrogates. They are elected for the term of six years, and are allowed to take acknowledgments of deeds and administer oaths in the same manner as County Judges.

SPECIAL SURROGATES.

By authority of the Constitution, the Legislature may provide for the election of Special Surrogates, who discharge the duties of Surrogate, in cases of inability, or of a vacancy, and exercise such other powers in special cases as may be provided by law. The election of Special Surrogates has been authorized in several counties. The Legislature fixes the term of office, which is usually three years.

DISTRICT ATTORNEYS.

The original appellation of this office was that of Assistant Attorney-General. The districts embraced several counties, and were seven in number. (Act February 12, 1796.) The office was filled by the Governor and Council during pleasure. The Attorney-General officiated personally in New York county. The office of District Attorney was created April 4, 1801. At first the State was divided into seven districts as before, but subsequently several new ones were formed. By a law, passed April, 1818, each county was constituted a separate district, for the purposes of this office. During the prevalence of the Second Constitution, District Attorneys were appointed by the Court of General Sessions in each county.

SHERIFFS.

Sheriffs during the Colonial period were appointed annually, in the month of October, unless otherwise noticed. Under the First Constitution they were appointed annually by the Council of Appointment, and no person could hold the office for more than four successive years. The Sheriff could hold no other office, and must be a freeholder in the county to which appointed. Since the adoption of the Constitution of 1821, Sheriffs have been elected for a term of three years, and are ineligible to election for the next succeeding term.

COUNTY CLERKS.

The County Clerk, during the Colonial period, was constituted by his commission, Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas, Clerk of the Peace and Clerk of the Sessions of the Peace, in his county. Under the first State Constitution, it was his duty to keep the County Records, and act as Clerk of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas,¹ and Clerk of the Oyer and Terminer.² The seals of the County Clerk were the Seals of the Court of Common Pleas. County Clerks are now likewise Clerks of the Supreme Court in their respective counties, and their seals are declared to be the seals of the court. The term of office, since the adoption of the Constitution of 1821, has been three years.

REGISTERS OF DEEDS.

An act of the Legislature, passed March 13, 1812 (chap. 27), authorized the Governor, by and with the consent of the Council of Appointment, to designate a person to perform all duties of the Clerk of the City and County of New York, in relation to recording and registering of deeds, conveyances, mortgages and other writings. Chapter 83 of the Laws of 1852 created the office of Register of the county of Kings, and chapter 293 of the Laws of 1858, that of Register of the county of Westchester. Registers are now elected in those counties at general elections, for the term of three years.

COUNTY TREASURERS.

The Legislature, by an act passed December 16, 1847, pursuant to authority conferred by the Constitution, provided for the election of a County Treasurer of each county of the State. They were formerly appointed by the Board of Supervisors of the respective counties, which are still authorized to fill vacancies occurring in such offices. County Treasurers are elected for the term of three years.

CITIES.

The struggle for municipal rights, which was so stubbornly conducted by the first inhabitants of New Netherlands, laid the foundations for civil liberty in the province,¹ as similar struggles had resulted similarly on the continent of Europe. The municipal government instituted in New Amsterdam by the Dutch² was superseded by a chartered government under the English; the charter being granted by the Governor as representing the sovereign, who alone could confer corporate privileges. This power now vests in the Legislature, as the representative of the sovereignty of the people. The privileges conferred upon cities vary with their respective charters. They are divided into wards and districts, the latter of several kinds, for the better administration of their internal affairs. Their officers are a Mayor, Common Council, a Recorder, Clerk and other judicial and administrative officers.

3 In the charter of 1686, Albany is styled an ancient town, that had enjoyed divers privileges by grants, confirmations and proclamations, under the names of Beaverwyck, William-Staat and Albany. The Dutch styled it New Orange. In 1652 (April 10) Director Stuyvesant by proclamation instituted the first court of justice for the village of Beaverwyck, which was the beginning of its corporate existence.

4 Including the late city of Williamsburgh, by an act of April 17, 1854. The latter was incorporated a village April 14, 1827, and a city April 7, 1851. Brooklyn was incorporated as a village by the Dutch in 1646.

5 Incorporated as a village under name of Newtown; name changed April 21, 1868.

6 Astoria, now included in city.

7 First named Rochesterville; changed, April 12, 1822.

8 Patented November 4, 1664. Trustees appointed by Patent, April 16, 1705. Created a Borough, October 23, 1765.

MAYORS.

Mayors were originally appointed by the respective Common Councils. The question of the election of Mayor of New York city was submitted to a vote of the people in 1833, and was decided affirmatively. In 1839, the question of the election of Mayors of all the cities was submitted to a vote of the people, and was decided affirmatively. Since that time they have been elected.¹

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT.

The counties of New York, Kings, Westchester and Richmond were, by an act passed April 15, 1857, united in one Police District.

By an act passed April 10, 1860, the Police District was extended to embrace also the towns of Newtown, Flushing and Jamaica, in Queens county; the number of Commissioners was reduced from five to three, to be appointed by the Governor and Senate for a term of six years. Those first appointed were classified so that a vacancy would occur once in two years, and the Commissioners holding under the first act were superseded by those appointed under the latter.

An act passed March 16, 1864 (ch. 41), changed the number of Commissioners to four, and their term of office to eight years, except those first appointed. The official term expired on the first day of March. Their names and terms were mentioned in the act. The law provided for the election of their successors in the same manner as Regents of the University are chosen. The remaining Commissioners were to fill vacancies during the interim of the Legislature, persons so appointed to hold office until the Legislature elected their successors.

By the provisions of an act passed in 1866 (ch. 74), the Police Board, with four Sanitary Commissioners, to be appointed by the Governor and Senate, were created a Board of Health for the Metropolitan Police District, and by another act passed the same session (ch. 578), the power to grant licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors within the District, except in Westchester county, was conferred on the Health Board.

Chapter 381 of the Laws of 1870 repealed the act of 1866 so far as its provisions related to the city of Brooklyn, and conferred the powers previously exercised by the Board on local officers appointed by the Common Council upon nomination by the Mayor. By an act passed April 5th of the same year, the Health Department of the city of New York was reorganized to consist of the Police Commissioners of the city, the Health Officer of the Port, and four officers to be appointed for the term of five years, by the Mayor. The several officers to constitute the Commissioners of Health of the city of New York. The act established four bureaux, the chief officer of one to be designated City Sanitary Inspector, another to be known as the Sanitary Permit Bureau, a third the Bureau of Street Cleaning, and a chief officer of the fourth, to be called the Register of Records; a subsequent law of the same year directed the transfer to the new Board of the books, property and effects in the possession of the Metropolitan Board of Health and conferred the powers exercised by that Board upon the Commissioners of Health, to be thereafter exclusively exercised by them in the city of New York. Chapter 636 of the Laws of 1874 extended the powers of the Commissioners to the waters of the bay, up to and within the quarantine limits as established by law, but not to be held to interfere with the powers and duties of the Commissioners of Quarantine or Health Officer of the Port. The laws relating to the Metropolitan Sanitary District and Board of Health so far as they applied to Westchester county were repealed by chapter 433 of the Laws of 1871, and chapter 160 of the Laws of 1872 authorized the appointment of five Sanitary Commissioners for the county of Richmond, upon whom the powers previously exercised by the Metropolitan Board were conferred.

TOWNS.

Towns were erected by the Legislature until 1849,⁹ when power was given to the several Boards of Supervisors (except in New York county), by a vote of two-thirds of the members elected, to divide or alter the bounds of any town or erect new ones, when such division does not place parts of the same town in more than one assembly district. Application for such division or change must first be made by at least twelve freeholders of each town affected by the division, and a notice of intended application posted in at least five

⁶ Appointed vice Acton, resigned. ⁷ Re-appointed.

⁸ Appointed vice Schultz, resigned December 23, 1867; re-appointed January 22, 1868.

⁹ Laws of 1849, chap. 194.

public places, and published in all the county papers. A survey and map of the town or towns must also be filed in the Secretary's office, together with a certified copy of the act of the Board. The latter is published in the Appendix to the Laws of the following session. Towns may also be erected by the Legislature.

There are elected, by ballot, in each town (not excepted by statute) a Supervisor, Town Clerk, three Assessors, a Collector, two Overseers of the Poor, one or three Commissioners of Highways, four Justices of the Peace, Constables (not exceeding five), and two Inspectors of Elections to each election district (a third being designated by the presiding officers [Justices of the Peace] of the town meeting from the two having the next highest vote). As many Pound Masters as the electors shall determine are chosen by a vice voce vote of the electors. One Overseer of Highways for each road district¹ is appointed by the Commissioners of Highways. Assessors and Commissioners of Highways are elected for three years, Justices for four years, and most of the others for one year. All are paid by fees, or a per diem compensation for the time employed.²

An act of the Legislature, passed June 5, 1886 (chap. 585), authorized the electors of each of the several towns of the State, at any town meeting thereafter held, to determine by ballot whether such town shall elect at the next succeeding town meeting, held in the town, a board of town auditors, who shall exercise all the powers conferred by law upon such boards. All bills and claims against the towns must be presented to such auditors on the first day of their session. No person other than a freeholder of the town in which he is elected, is eligible to the office. Town auditors are provided for by special acts in the counties of Warren, Essex, Clinton, Madison, Albany and Saratoga.

Towns are divided into School Districts, in each of which are chosen one or three Trustees,³ a Clerk, Collector and Librarian. Trustees are elected for one or three years; the other officers for one year.

³ By an act passed April 12, 1858, School Districts were authorized to elect one Trustee to hold for three years; but by the provisions of chapter 555, Laws of 1864, when one trustee only is elected, his term of office is limited to one year. Annual school meetings are held on the second Tuesday of October.

EXISTING TOWNS.

[In the following table the names of existing towns only are given, and the dates of erection are those on which they were first recognized by the laws of the State. Many had previously existed under patent in the colonial period. County seats are designated by SMALL CAPITALS, half-shire towns by italics.]

VILLAGES.

Villages were incorporated by the Legislature only, until 1847, when a general law was passed, allowing the citizens of any town not included in an incorporated village, and with a resident population of not less than three hundred persons upon one square mile, to become a corporation under the provisions of the act. When, in the judgment of the Legislature, the objects of these corporations could not be attained by the general law, the Legislature had power to pass special acts for that purpose until the Constitution was amended in 1874.¹

The election of village officers occurs annually on the first Tuesday of March, unless otherwise directed by special act, and unless a town meeting shall be held on that day, then it is held on the day after.

The officers of villages, under the general law, are five Trustees, three Assessors, a Collector, Treasurer and Clerk, three Street Commissioners (when such village shall be a separate road district), such number of Fire Wardens, not exceeding five, as the Trustees may direct to be elected, and one Poundmaster. There are many special exceptions to this act.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

The origins of the Confederation and of the Federal Union have been set forth in the earlier part of this volume. We here give the representatives of the State of New York in the various departments of the Federal Government, except Customs officers and Indian Commissioners.¹

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

The Federal Constitution provides that the President and Vice-President of the United States shall be chosen by electors appointed in such manner as the Legislatures of the respective States shall direct, the number to be equal to their number of Senators and Representatives in Congress. In this State, the electors were originally appointed by the Legislature, by an act passed April 12, 1792. By those acts the Southern District was allowed four electors, and the others three each, and the first Tuesday of November was designated as the time for the meeting of the College, which was directed to be at Poughkeepsie. Subsequently, in pursuance of an act passed March 26, 1796, the Legislature convened in special session, quadrennially, on the first Tuesday of November, at Hudson, in place of the Electoral College. Since 1812, in pursuance of an act passed May 26 of that year, the Electors have met at the Capitol in Albany.

By an act passed March 15, 1825, the Legislature submitted to the people the question of choosing Electors by districts, or on a general ticket, which resulted as follows: "By districts," 66,324. "By general ticket, plurality," 56,801. "By general ticket, majority," 931. The district system thus adopted was only in vogue at one election, when the Legislature, by an act passed April 15, 1829, adopted the general ticket system, as now in use. The Electors must be appointed within thirty-four days before the first Wednesday of December, in every fourth year. In this State the Electors are now chosen on the Tuesday after the first Monday of November, and also in all the other States. In making up the general ticket, one person is selected from each Congressional District, and two to represent the State at large.

The Electoral College is required to meet at the State Capitol on the second Monday in January, cast their votes for President and Vice-President, make a certified list thereof, and forward it under seal to the President of the United States Senate, who opens and announces the result, in the presence of the two houses of Congress.

* Elected Vice-President. 1 New York did not choose electors at the first Presidential election, the two branches of the Legislature being unable to agree. Rhode Island and North Carolina did not elect, not having ratified the Constitution.

2 This vote being a tie, the election went to the House of Representatives, where, on the thirty-sixth ballot, Jefferson was chosen President, and Burr Vice-President.

3 There being no choice by the people, the House of Representatives elected John Quincy Adams.

 9 Assassinated July 2, 1881; died September 19, 1881.
 10 Became President on the death of President Garfield. 11 Died November 20, 1885.

THE PRESIDENT.

The Constitution of the United States provides that the executive power shall be vested in a "President of the United States of America," who shall hold his office during the term of four years. He is chosen by electors from the several States of the Union, who are appointed in such manner as their respective legislatures may direct, each State being entitled to a number of electors, equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in Congress. The time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes — which day is required to be the same throughout the United States — is determined by Congress.

No person, other than a natural born citizen of the United States, is eligible to the office of President, or is any person eligible to that office who shall not have attained the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States. Before entering on the execution of his office, the President is required to take the following oath or affirmation: — "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

The President is Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the Militia of the several States, when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and has power to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States, except in cases of impeachment; he also has power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur; he nominates, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate appoints Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, Judges of the Supreme Court and all other officers of the United States whose appointments are not otherwise provided for in the Constitution, and which shall be established by law; but Congress may vest the appointment of such inferior officers, as they think proper, in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of Departments. The President has power to fill all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session, and he is also required from time to time to give to Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration, such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; and he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them, and in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper.

The President receives Ambassadors and other public Ministers accredited to the United States from foreign governments and commissions all the officers of the United States; and it is required of him that he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed. The Constitution provides that he may be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors. His compensation is fixed by law at $50,000 per annum, payable monthly, and he is entitled to the use of the furniture and other effects belonging to the United States and kept in the Executive Mansion; he is authorized to appoint or employ in his official household the following officers, viz.: a private secretary and assistant private secretary, two executive clerks, a steward and messenger whose salaries are paid by the Government. In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the office, the same devolve on the Vice-President; in the event of a vacancy in both such offices, a member of the Cabinet acts as President, until the disability is removed, or a President shall be elected.

PRESIDENTS ELECTED FROM THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

PRESIDENTS.		ELECTED.		PRESIDENTS.		ELECTED.
Martin Van Buren	Nov.	8, 1836	Chester A. Arthur 2.	Sept.	19, 1881
Millard Fillmore, 1.	July	9, 1850	Grover Cleveland.....	Nov.	4, 1884

THE VICE-PRESIDENT.

The Vice-President is elected at the same time and in the same manner as the President of the United States. No person who is ineligible for the office of President can be chosen Vice-President. He goes into office with the President and their terms begin on the same day. In case the President should resign, die, or become unable to exercise the functions of his office, or is removed from it, the duties of the position devolve upon the Vice-President during the remainder of the term for which they both were elected. In case both the President and Vice-President should resign, die, or become unable to perform the duties required of them, or be removed from office, Congress has power to designate by law what officer shall then act as President. By an act passed January 19, 1886 (chap. 4, U. S. Statutes), members of the Cabinet are designated to act as President during a vacancy in that office occurring at a time when a vacancy also exists in the office of Vice-President.

1 Vice-President, succeeded Zachary Taylor, deceased.
 2 Vice-President, succeeded James A. Garfield, as-assassinated.

The Vice-President is, by virtue of his office, the President of the United States Senate, and in the event of his death, removal, resignation or inability to discharge the duties of his office, the Senate elects a presiding officer of the Senate. The Vice-President may be removed from his office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes or misdemeanors; as presiding officer of the Senate, he cannot vote except when there is an equal division of the Senate on any question, and then his vote is decisive. It is also his duty as presiding officer of the Senate, to open, in the presence of the assembled Senate and House of Representatives, all of the certificates of the electors of the President and Vice-President, and superintend the counting of the votes accompanying the certificates. If no person have a majority of the whole number of electors appointed by the several States, then the Senate is required to choose the Vice-President from the two highest numbers on the list.

FEDERAL CONGRESS.

NEW YORK SENATORS.

The Constitution of the United States provides that the Legislature of each State shall choose two Senators, who shall hold their office for the term of six years. Vacancies occurring during the recess of the Legislature are directed to be filled by the Executive until the next meeting of the Legislature. At the first session they were divided into three classes, so that one-third might be chosen every second year. A Senator must be an inhabitant of the State from which he is chosen, been nine years a citizen of the United States, and have attained the age of thirty years. This State was not represented in the first session of the first Congress.

REPRESENTATIVES IN CONGRESS.

The House of Representatives is composed of members elected by districts. Representatives hold office two years, must reside in the State which they are chosen to represent, have been seven years citizens of the United States, and have attained the age of twenty-five years. Each new Congress commences on the 4th day of March every odd year. The elections are generally held during the even year preceding—in this State on the general election day. The Constitution of the United States directs that a census be taken every ten years, which has been fixed at those ending with a cipher, and after each enumeration Congress apportions the representation among the several States. The following table gives the apportionment under the first Constitution and those subsequently made.

SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Speaker is the presiding officer of the House of Representatives, and is chosen by the members of that body. The oath of office is administered by any member of the House of Representatives to the Speaker, and by the Speaker to all of the members and delegates previous to their taking their seats. He certifies the salary and accounts for traveling expenses of delegates and representatives and his certificate is conclusive upon all departments and officers of the government. No person can be employed as a reporter for the House of Representatives without the approval of the Speaker. In case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the President and Vice-President of the United States, the President of the Senate, or, if there is none, then the Speaker of the House of Representatives, for the time being, acts as President until the disability is removed or a President is elected.

FEDERAL APPOINTMENTS FROM NEW YORK.

CABINET OFFICERS.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

The Secretary of State, the head of the Department of State, receives his appointment from the President and Senate, and holds office during the pleasure of the President, of whose Cabinet he is a member. He receives compensation of $8,000 per annum, and is charged with such duties as shall from time to time be enjoined on or intrusted to him by the President, relative to correspondences, commissions, or instructions to or with public ministers or consuls from the United States, or to negotiations with public ministers from foreign States or Princes; or to memorials or other applications from foreign public ministers, or other foreigners, and to such other matters respecting foreign affairs as the President may assign to the Department, the business of which is required to be conducted in such manner as the President shall direct.

The Secretary of State has the custody of the seal of the United States; he countersigns and affixes such seal to all executive proclamations, to various commissions, and to warrants for pardon, and the extradition of fugitives from justice; he is also custodian of the seal of the Department of State, and of all books, records and other property in and appertaining to that Department; also has the custody of treaties made with foreign States, and of the laws of the United States; grants and issues passports, and exequaturs to foreign consuls in the United States are issued through his office. He publishes the laws and resolutions of Congress, amendments to the Constitution, and proclamations declaring the admission of new States into the Union, and is the medium of correspondence between the President and the chief executive of the several States of the Union; he lays before Congress, at each regular session, a statement of all returns made to him pursuant to law, by collectors of the different ports, of seamen registered by them as citizens of the United States, together with an account of such impressments and detentions as appear by protests of masters to have taken place; he also lays before Congress annually a statement of all changes and modifications in the commercial systems of other nations, whether by treaties, duties on imports and exports, or other regulations that have been communicated to the Department of State, including all commercial information contained in the official publications of other governments which he shall deem sufficiently important; and a synopsis of so much of the information as he may deem valuable for public information, which may have been officially communicated to him by diplomatic and consular officers during the preceding year; also a full list of all consular officers, and a report of any rates or tariffs of fees to be received by diplomatic or consular officers which may have been prescribed by the President, together with a statement of such fees as may have been collected, accounted for and reported by the various diplomatic and consular officers during the year preceding; also, a statement of the lists of passengers arriving in the United States from foreign places, returned to him quarter-yearly by the several collectors of customs.

The Secretary of State is allowed three assistants, designated, respectively, Assistant Secretary of State, and Second and Third Assistant Secretary of State, who are appointed by the President and Senate. He is also allowed a number of clerks. The Assistant Secretary becomes Acting Secretary of State in the absence of or during the inability of his principal to perform the duties of the office.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY.

The Secretary of the Treasury, the head of the Department of the Treasury, receives his appointment from the President and Senate, and holds office during the pleasure of the President, of whose Cabinet he is a member. He receives compensation of $8,000 per annum, and is required from time to time to digest and prepare plans for the improvement and management of the revenues, and for the support of the public credit; he superintends the collection of the revenue, and prescribes forms for keeping and rendering all public accounts and making returns. Under certain limitations he grants warrants for all money drawn from the treasury, in pursuance of appropriations by law, and, when required to, makes report and gives information respecting matters referred to him by either branch of Congress, or which appertains to his office, and generally performs all services relative to the finances of the Government.

He directs the superintendence of the collection of the duties on imports and tonnage, and causes all accounts of the expenditure of public money to be settled within each fiscal year, except from distant places, where, with the assent of the President, fixed periods for settlements are established; makes and issues such instructions and regulations to public officers and others who may receive treasury notes or other securities of the United States, or who are employed in their preparation or issue as he shall deem best calculated to promote the public convenience and security and to protect the Government, as well as individuals, from fraud and loss; prescribes rules and regulations for the execution and enforcement of the internal revenue laws and laws relating to raising revenue from imports, and to duties on imports or to warehousing, and prescribes the forms of annual statements to be submitted to Congress by him, showing the actual state of commerce and navigation between the United States and foreign countries, or coastwise between the collection districts of the United States. And he makes provision for the payment of the public debt under authority from Congress, publishes statements concerning it, and submits to Congress at each session estimates of the probable receipts and the required expenditures for the ensuing fiscal year besides making numerous statistical reports relating to finance and commerce and navigation.

The Secretary of the Treasury controls the erection of public buildings of the United States throughout the various States, the coinage and printing of money, the collection of commercial statistics, the marine hospital, the revenue-cutter service, the life-saving service and the administration of the coast and geodetic survey. And under his superintendence the light-house board discharges its duties relative to light-houses, buoys, sea marks and their appendages.

An act of Congress passed August 3, 1882, imposed upon vessels bringing alien passengers to ports of the United States, a per capita tax of fifty cents for each one landed, and the Secretary of the United States Treasury was charged with supervision over immigration to the United States, and was empowered to enter into contracts with such State commissions, boards or officers as should be designated for that purpose by the Governor of any State, to take charge of the local affairs of immigration at the ports within the State. The act also provided that when there shall be found among the passengers of any vessel a convict (excepting those convicted of political offenses), lunatic or idiot, or persons unable to care for themselves without becoming a public charge, that such persons should not be permitted to land. The expenses incurred by the designated boards or officers are paid by the Secretary of the Treasury from the per capita tax.

The Secretary of the Treasury is allowed two Assistant Secretaries who are appointed by the President and Senate, one of whom is designated to discharge the duties of the office in the absence or during the disability of his principal. The following officers, who receive their appointments from the President and Senate, are under the control and direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, viz.: First and Second Comptroller, First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Auditor; Treasurer of the United States; Register of the United States Treasury; Commissioner of Customs; Commissioner of Internal Revenue; Director of the Mint; Comptroller of the Currency, who receives his appointment from the President and Senate, on recommendation of the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Superintendent of the Bureau of Statistics, who receives his appointment from the Secretary of the Treasury.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR.

The Secretary of War, the head of the Department of War, receives his appointment from the President and Senate and holds office during the pleasure of the President, of whose Cabinet he is a member. He receives compensation of $8,000 per annum, and is charged with such duties as shall from time to time be enjoined upon or intrusted to him by the President, who is commander-in-chief, relative to military commissions, the military forces, the warlike stores of the United States, or to other matters respecting military affairs. The business of the Department is required to be conducted in such manner as the President may direct.

The Secretary of War has the custody of the books, records and other property appertaining to the War Department; from time to time he collects, at the seat of government, such flags, standards and colors as may be taken by the army from the enemies of the United States; he defines and prescribes the kinds as well as the amount of supplies to be purchased for the army and provides for its distribution. The transportation of troops, munitions of war, equipments, military property and stores throughout the United States are under his immediate control and supervision.

The Secretary of War provides for taking meteorological observations at the military stations in the interior of the continent, and at other points in the States and Territories, and for giving notice, on the northern lakes and sea-coast, of the approach and force of storms as well as furnishing such reports and signals as may be found necessary for the benefit of agriculture and commercial interests. He establishes signal stations at light-houses and at such of the life-saving stations on the lake or sea-coast as are suitably located for the purpose.

The Secretary of War has the supervision of all expenditures made under appropriations for the support of the army, and for such of a civil nature as may by law be placed under his administration. He arranges the course of studies at the military academy; submits all estimates to Congress, for public buildings and grounds in charge of the Chief of Engineers, and is charged with the purchase of real estate suitable and necessary for carrying into effect the provisions for national cemeteries; has direction of the construction of piers or cribs, by owners of saw-mills on the Mississippi river; has the management of the Louisville and Portland canal; makes rules respecting bids for contracts, and is required to cause sunken vessels obstructing navigation to be removed. He exercises supervision over disbursements by army officers; and has control of the National Park, forming a part of Mackinac Island in the State of Michigan, and the direction of the expenditure of the appropriation for the Mississippi Commission. He annually submits to Congress a statement of the appropriations for the preceding fiscal year. for the Department of War under each specified head of appropriation, and in connection with reports of examinations and surveys of rivers and harbors, he submits full statements of all facts tending to show the extent to which the general commerce of the country will be promoted by the several works of improvement contemplated by such examinations and surveys; he also lays before Congress, annually, an abstract of the returns of the Adjutants-General of the several States, of the militia thereof, together with numerous other reports concerning various matters with which he is charged with the supervision. The Secretary of War also decides what articles of personal property lost or destroyed in the military service in time of peace, by officers and enlisted men of the army, can be paid for under the provisions of the Act of March 3, 1885.

Beside the large clerical force under his immediate control, the following officers appointed by the President and Senate are subordinate to the Secretary of War, viz.: Adjutant-General, Quartermaster-General, Paymaster-General, Commissary-General, Surgeon-General, Chief of Engineers, Chief of Ordnance, Chief Signal officer and Judge-Advocate-General. An inferior officer, known as Chief Clerk of the Department of War, is appointed by the Secretary of War. Such clerk is authorized, in the event of a vacancy occurring, to take charge of the books and property of the Department during the continuance of the same. The Secretary, during his temporary absence, may authorize the Chief Clerk to sign requisitions upon the Treasury, and other papers requiring the signature of the Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY.

The Secretary of the Navy, the head of the Department of the Navy, receives his appointment from the President and Senate, and holds office during the term of the President, of whose Cabinet he is a member. He receives compensation of $8,000 per annum, and is charged with the execution of such orders as the President of the United States, who is commander-in-chief, may assign to him relative to the procurement of naval stores and materials, and the construction, armament, equipment and employment of vessels of war, as well as all other matters connected with the naval establishment. The Secretary of the Navy has the custody of the books, records and other property in and appertaining to the Department of the Navy. The business of the Department is distributed, in such manner as the Secretary of the Navy shall judge to be expedient and proper, among the following Bureaus, the chiefs of which receive their appointments for the term of four years, from the President and Senate. The Bureaus are: Yards and Docks, Equipment and Recruiting, Navigation, Ordnance, Construction and Repair, Steam Engineering, Provisions and Clothing and Medicine and Surgery. The duties of the several Bureaus are required to be performed under the authority of the Secretary of the Navy.

The Secretary of the Navy from time to time causes to be collected at the seat of government all flags, standards and colors taken by the navy from the enemies of the United States; and he makes annual reports to Congress on the following subjects, viz.: A statement of the appropriations of the preceding fiscal year for the Department of the Navy, showing the amount appropriated under each specific head of appropriation, the amount expended under each head, and the balance which, on the 30th day of June preceding such report, remained unexpended. A statement of all offers for contracts for supplies and services made during the preceding year, by classes, indicating such as have been accepted. A statement showing the amounts expended during the preceding year for wages of mechanics and laborers employed in building, repairing or equipping vessels of the navy, or in receiving and securing stores and materials for those purposes, and for the purchase of material and stores for the same purpose; showing the cost or estimated value of the stores on hand, under this appropriation, in the navy yards at the commencement of the next preceding fiscal year; and the cost or estimated value of articles received and expended during the year; and the cost or estimated value of the articles belonging to the appropriation which may be on hand in the navy yards at the close of the next preceding fiscal year; and a statement of all acts done by him in making sale of any vessel or materials of the navy, specifying all vessels and materials sold, the parties buying the same and the amount realized therefrom, together with such other facts as may be necessary to a full understanding of his acts.

All estimates for specific, general or contingent expenses of the Department of the Navy, and of the several Bureaus, are required to be furnished to the Secretary of the Navy by the chiefs of the respective Bureaus. Provision is made for attaching to the Bureau of Navigation, in the Navy Department, a hydrographic office, for the improvement of the means for navigating safely the vessels of the navy and of the mercantile marine, by providing, under the authority of the Secretary of the Navy, accurate and cheap nautical charts, sailing directions, navigators and manuals of instruction for the use of all vessels of the United States, and for the benefit and use of navigators generally. He is also authorized to cause to be prepared, at the hydrographic office, maps, charts and nautical books relating to and required in navigation, and to publish and furnish them to navigators at the cost of printing and paper. The moneys received from the sale of maps, charts and nautical books is paid into the treasury of the United States.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR.

The Secretary of the Interior, the head of the Department of the Interior, receives his appointment from the President and Senate, and holds office during the term of the President, of whose Cabinet he is a member. He receives compensation of $8,000 per annum, and is charged with the supervision of public business relating to the census, when directed by law; the public lands, including mines; the Indians; pension and bounty lands; patents for inventions; the custody and distribution of publications; education; government hospital for the insane; and Columbia Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb. He also exercises all powers and performs all duties in relation to the territories of the United States, which, prior to 1873, were exercised by the Secretary of State, and has supervisory and appellate powers in relation to all acts of marshals and others in taking and returning the census of the United States; and he is required to sign all requisitions for the advance or payment of money out of the Treasury, upon estimates or accounts for expenditures upon business assigned to his Department; subject, however, to adjustment and control by the proper accounting officers of the Treasury. He makes annual reports to Congress, showing the nature, character and amount of all claims presented to him during the preceding year under laws or treaty stipulations for compensation for depredations committed by Indians; and a report showing the quantity and kind of copies of public journals, books and documents received by him for distribution on behalf of the government.

The Secretary of the Interior is allowed two assistant secretaries, appointed by the President and Senate, the first assistant discharges the duties of the office during the absence or inability of his principal; he is also allowed a number of subordinates and clerks, who receive their appointments from him. The several bureaus in the Department of the Interior are the General Land Office, presided over by a Commissioner appointed by the President and Senate, who performs all executive duties appertaining to the surveying and sale of public lands of the United States, and the issuing of patents for grants of government lands.

A Commissioner of Indian Affairs, appointed by the President and Senate, who is charged with the management of Indian affairs, and of matters arising out of Indian relations. The Commissioner makes separate annual reports to Congress.

A Commissioner of Pensions, appointed by the President and Senate, who performs, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, such duties in the execution of the various pension and bounty land laws as may be prescribed by the President.

A Commissioner of Patents, appointed by the President and Senate, who has charge of the books, records, papers, models, machines and other belongings of the Patent Office, and perform all duties respecting the granting and issuing of patents directed by law. The Commissioner makes a separate report to Congress.

A Commissioner of Education, appointed by the President and Senate, who has the management of the Office of Education, and is charged with the duty of collecting statistics relating thereto in the several States and Territories, and with diffusing information respecting the organization and management of schools and school systems, and methods of teaching.

A Commissioner of Railroads, appointed by the President and Senate, who is charged with prescribing a system of reports to be rendered to him by the railroad companies whose roads are in whole or in part west, north or south of the Missouri river, and to which the United States have granted any loan of credit or subsidy in lands or bonds; he examines the books, accounts and property of said companies, to see that the laws relating to them are enforced; and assists the Government Directors of any of such railroad companies in all matters which come under their cognizance, whenever they may officially request assistance.

A Commissioner of Labor who is directed to collect information upon the subject of labor, its relation to capital, the hours of labor, and the earnings of laboring men and women, and the means of promoting their material, social, intellectual and moral prosperity; he makes annual reports to the Secretary of the Interior of the information collected and collated by him, together with such recommendations as he may deem calculated to promote the efficiency of the Bureau.

A Superintendent of Public Documents, appointed by the Secretary of the Interior, who is charged, subject to the general direction of the Secretary of the Interior, with the duty of collecting, arranging, preserving, packing and distributing publications received at the Department of the Interior for distribution. He is also charged with the duty of compiling and supervising the Biennial Register.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

The Postmaster-General, the head of the Post-Office Department, receives his appointment from the President and Senate, and holds office during the term of the President by whom appointed, and for one month thereafter, unless sooner removed. He is a member of the Cabinet and receives compensation of $8,000 per annum. It is made the duty of the Postmaster-General to establish and discontinue post-offices; to instruct persons in the postal service with reference to their duties; to decide on the forms of all official papers; to prescribe the manner of keeping and stating accounts; to enforce the prompt rendition of returns relative to accounts; to control, according to law and subject to the settlement of the Sixth Auditor, all expenses incident to the service of the Post-Office Department, and to superintend the disposal of the moneys of that Department; to direct the manner in which balances shall be paid over; issue warrants to cover money into the Treasury, and to pay out the same; to superintend generally the business of the Post-Office Department, and execute the laws relative to the postal service.

The Postmaster-General keeps complete inventories and accounts of all property belonging to the United States, in the buildings and grounds occupied by him and under his charge, and reports the same to Congress at each annual session.

For the purpose of making better postal arrangements with foreign countries, and to counteract their adverse measures affecting our postal intercourse with them, the Postmaster-General, with the consent of the President, may negotiate and conclude postal treaties or conventions, and may reduce or increase the rates of postage on mail matter conveyed between the United States and foreign countries.

All bonds taken and contracts entered into by the Post-Office Department are required to be made to and with the United States of America. Postal revenues and debts due the Post-Office Department, when collected, are paid into the Treasury of the United States, under the direction of the Postmaster-General. Persons employed in the Post-Office Department are prohibited from being interested in contracts for carrying the mail, or acting as agents for contractors in any business before that Department.

The Postmaster-General makes numerous annual reports to Congress, among which are the following, viz.: Of contracts for carrying the mail, made the preceding year; of land and water mails established or ordered, other than those let by contract; of allowances made to contractors above the sums originally stipulated in their contracts, and the reasons therefor; of all curtailments of expenses effected within the preceding year; a statement of the finances of the Post-Office Department for the preceding year; the amount of postage which accrued within the year; the amount of engagements and liabilities, and the amount actually paid during the year for carrying the mail; the fines imposed on and the deductions from the pay of contractors, made during the year, and a report showing all contracts which have been made by the Post-Office Department, other than for carrying the mail; also copies of each contract for carrying the mail between the United States and foreign countries, with a statement of the amount of postage derived under the same, and a report on the postal business and agencies in foreign countries, together with a report of the amount expended in the Post-Office Department for the preceding fiscal year.

The Postmaster-General furnishes a copy of his annual estimates to the Secretary of the Treasury prior to November 1, each year, which is reported to Congress by the latter officer in his regular printed estimates. To assist in the administration of his office the Postmaster-General is allowed three assistant Postmasters-General, who are appointed by the President and Senate. The First Assistant discharges the duties of the office in case of the death, removal or inability of his principal. The large clerical force and all other officers and employees of the Department are appointed by the Postmaster-General, who also appoints all postmasters whose compensation does not exceed $1,000 per annum; those who receive compensation in excess of that sum are appointed by the President and Senate.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

The Attorney-General, the head of the Department of Justice, receives his appointment from the President and Senate, and holds office during the pleasure of the President, of whose Cabinet he is a member. He receives compensation of $8,000 per annum, and is required to give his advice and opinion on questions of law whenever demanded by the President. And the heads of the executive departments may require his opinion on questions of law arising in the administration of their respective departments. He has general superintendence and direction of the attorneys and marshals of all the districts in the United States and the Territories, as to the manner of discharging their respective duties, and they report to him an account of their official proceedings and the condition of their respective offices, in such time and manner as he may direct; he also has general supervisory powers over the accounts of district attorneys, marshals, clerks and other officers of the courts of the United States.

Except when the Attorney-General in particular cases otherwise directs, the Attorney-General and Solicitor-General conduct and argue cases and writs of error and appeals in the Supreme Court and suits in the Court of Claims in which the United States is interested; and the Attorney-General may, whenever he deems it for the interest of the United States, either in person conduct and argue any case in any court of the United States, in which the United States is interested, or may direct the Solicitor-General, or any officer of the Department of Justice, to do so.

Whenever in his opinion the public interest requires it the Attorney-General employs such attorneys and counselors at law as he may deem necessary to assist the district attorneys in the discharge of their duties; he fixes the amount of compensation of such assistant attorneys and has supervision of their conduct and proceedings. No public money can be expended upon any site or land purchased by the United States for the purpose of erecting thereon public buildings of any kind until the written opinion of the Attorney-General has been given in favor of the validity of the title, nor until the consent of the Legislature of the State in which the land or site may be located has been given to such purchase. District Attorneys of the United States, on application of the Attorney-General, furnish assistance or information in relation to the titles of the public property lying within their respective districts.

The Attorney-General is required from time to time to cause to be edited and printed in volumes, at the government printing office, such of the opinions of the law officers of the Department of Justice as he may deem valuable for preservation, which are distributed under his direction. He makes regular reports to Congress of the business of the Department of Justice and of such other matters appertaining thereto as he may deem proper, together with a statement of the amounts used for defraying the expenses of the United States courts in each judicial district, with the statistics of crime under the laws of the United States, and a statement of the causes pending in each of the several United States courts during the preceding year.

The Solicitor-General, appointed by the President and Senate, assists the Attorney-General in the performance of his official duties. During the absence or inability of the Attorney-General he is authorized to exercise all of the duties of the office. The Attorney-General is also allowed three Assistant Attorneys-General appointed by the President and Senate. Under the act of 1870, the following law officers of the executive departments exercise their functions under the supervision and control of the Attorney-General, viz.: Assistant Attorney-General for the Department of the Interior, Assistant Attorney-General for the Post-Office Department, Solicitor of the Treasury, Solicitor of Internal Revenue, and Examiner of Claims for the Department of State, all of whom are appointed by the President and Senate. In addition to the officers enumerated the Attorney-General is allowed a number of clerks who receive their appointments directly from him.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

The Secretary of Agriculture, the head of the Department of Agriculture, receives his appointment from the President and Senate, and holds office during the pleasure of the President, of whose Cabinet he is a member. He receives compensation of $8,000 per annum, and is charged with the duty of diffusing among the people of the United States useful information on subjects connected with agriculture, and is required to preserve in his Department all information concerning agriculture which he can obtain by means of books, correspondence, practical and scientific experiments, and by the collection of statistics or by any other appropriate means within his power. He collects new and valuable seeds and plants; tests by cultivation the value of such of them as may require such tests, and propogates such as may be worthy of propogation, which are thereafter distributed among agriculturists throughout the United States.

The Secretary of Agriculture prescribes regulations for the government of his Department, the conduct of its officers and clerks, the distribution and performance of its business, and the custody, use and preservation of the records, papers and property appertaining to it. He makes an annual report in writing of his acts to the President and to Congress, which report is required to contain an account of all moneys received and expended by him. He also makes special reports on particular subjects whenever directed to do so by the President or either House of Congress.

In addition to the large clerical force under his supervision, he is allowed an Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, who receives his appointment from the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, who performs such duties as are required by law or prescribed by the Secretary. In the case of the death, resignation, absence or sickness of the Secretary of Agriculture, the Assistant Secretary performs the duties of the Secretary until a successor is appointed, or such absence or sickness shall cease.

DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR OFFICERS.

The President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoints Diplomatic and Consular representatives of the United States accredited to foreign governments and countries. The principal and permanent Consular officers are Consuls-General, Consuls and Commercial Agents, who reside in foreign countries to protect the commerce and commercial interests of the United States. The President defines the extent of country to be embraced within any consulate or commercial agency, and from time to time, as he may think conducive to the public interest, prescribes regulations in relation to the duties of all Diplomatic and Consular officers, the transaction of their business, the rendering of accounts and returns, the payment of compensation, the safe-keeping of the archives and public property in the hands of such officers, the communication of information and the procurement and transmission of the products of the arts and sciences, manufactures, agriculture and commerce.

Consuls at ports or places to which they are appointed, receive the protests or declarations which captains, masters, crews, passengers or merchants, who are citizens of the United States, may choose to make there, and also such as any foreigner may make before them relative to the personal interest of any citizen of the United States. Consular officers keep lists of all seamen and marines shipped and discharged by them; also, of the number of vessels arrived and departed, the registered tonnage of the same, the number of their seamen and marines, and of those who are protected, and whether citizens of the United States or not, and as nearly as possible the nature and value of their cargoes and where produced, making returns of the same to the Secretary of the Treasury.

They also take possession of the personal estate left by citizens of the United States (other than seamen belonging to any vessel), who die within the jurisdiction of the Consulate, leaving no representative or relative to care for their effects. The Consul inventories the effects, collects debts due the deceased, pays those due from him, sells such of the property as is perishable in its nature, and after one year the remainder, unless, in the mean time, some relative or representative appears to claim the same; in case no claim is made the effects are forwarded to the Secretary of the United States Treasury in trust for the legal claimants. Persons dying abroad may appoint consular officers their agents for the disposal of their effects, etc., or any other person instead. Consular officers, whose salaries exceed $1,000 per annum, are prohibited, while holding office, from being interested in or transacting business as merchants, factors, brokers or other traders, or as clerks or agents for such persons. All consular officers procure and transmit to the Department of State authentic information concerning the commerce of the countries in which they are located, of such character, in such manner and form, and at such times as the Department of State may prescribe; also the prices current of all articles of merchandise usually exported to the United States from the port or place at which the consular officer is stationed. Other duties of a commercial character are fully prescribed by law.

The Diplomatic Officers of the United States, include the following, who are appointed by the President and Senate: Ambassadors, being persons sent by one sovereign power to another sovereign power to transact public business of importance and interest to one or both of them. Envoys Extraordinary, who are representatives sent from one sovereignty to another on special business of importance. Ministers Plenipotentiary, being envoys or negotiators sent to a foreign government with full diplomatic powers. Ministers resident have diplomatic powers and reside at foreign capitals. Commissioners who are persons appointed by a sovereign power to confer with similar persons appointed from another sovereign power, and authorized to decide special and disputed questions of international interest or importance. Charges d'Affaires, in commission (missi), are ministers of the third or lowest grade sent to a foreign government, and are accredited to the Minister for Foreign Affairs, not to the sovereign as is the case with the higher grades. Agents are officers sent to a foreign country with limited powers to treat upon specified international matters. Secretaries of Legation are officers appointed by the President to serve in the United States Legations abroad. The Secretary of Legation, in the absence of the head of the mission, acts generally, and ex officio, as Charge d'Affaires ad interim without being specially accredited by formal letter.

Diplomatic and Consular officers are prohibited from corresponding in regard to the public affairs of any foreign government with any private person, newspaper or other periodical, or otherwise than with the proper officers of the United States, or from recommending any person, at home or abroad, for any employment of trust or profit under the government of the country in which he is located; or from asking or accepting for himself, or any other person, any present, emolument, pecuniary favor, office or title of any kind from any such government. All persons in the diplomatic service of the United States are prohibited from wearing any uniform or official costume not previously authorized by Congress. The compensation of Diplomatic or Consular Officers is fixed by statute, and is provided for by regular salaries or fees authorized to be collected, which vary from $500 to $17,500 per annum. The fees collected at the legations are required to be accounted for to the Secretary of the Treasury and held subject to his draft or other directions.

INDEX OF NAMES.

The principal purpose of this list is to provide an index to all the names in the volume. In the column of residences, the name of the county of residence is frequently given, as affording the readiest means of finding the name on the page or pages where it appears. The home residence or post-office address is given where known, when it will not interfere with this purpose. Obsolete post-offices are omitted. Figures in parentheses indicate the number of times the name appears on the page. The letter n signifies that the name occurs in a foot note.
